German Planes Continue To Batter At U.K. Defences-Three More Raiding Rombers Shot Down Saturday

By WALLACE CARROLL

British United Press. Exclusive Cable to The Edmonton Builetin.

LONDON, July 27.—German airplanes continued to batter at British defences today as the government called up another 300,000 men to boost the fighting forces past the 4,-

During the night, bombs were dropped in southern During the night, bombs were dropped in southern England, Wales and Scotland, causing several casualties and some damage. One German bomber was shot down about midnight and two more were brought down in the English Channel this morning in a dog fight with British

The British defence forces were bolstered by registration of men 34 years old at labor exchanges all over the country. It was estimated that by the end of the day the total registration would have reached 4,100,000 men.

IF IT WILL HELP ALBERTA THE

SATURDAY, JULY 27, 1940.

Trouble At The Back Door

King Carol having renounced his agreement with the Allies and pledged his adherence to the Axis powers, Britain is released from its obligations to Rumania leased from its obligations to Rumania, and will not oppose Bulgaria's claim to the province of Dobrudja, taken from it by Rumania at the end of the former war. That Bulgaria will push the claim, with the backing of Russia, is hardly a matter

When Carol surrendered to Nazi threats a couple of weeks ago. Berlin joy-fully announced that its rear and flanks were safe and it could concentrate on the destruction of Britain. Herr Goebbels must suspect now that his radio rejoicing was premature. There is looming up in the Balkans a situation neither Germany nor Italy can pretend to relish or afford to ignore. Herr Hitler and Signor Mussolini are facing a prospect of having to fight to keep Russian influence from penetrating and dominating the peninsula, with Bulgaria the spearhead of its drive.

Some members of parliament say the 15 cent per bushel processing tax.on wheat will result in an increase of one cent per loaf in the price of bread, but that a 30 cent tax would not force bread prices beyond the one-cent rise. Edmonton bakers say the increase in bread prices under the 15 cent tax will be only a half-cent per loaf. In either case the tax might as well be doubled—and the Wheat Board given that much more revenue to distribute that as the same that t loaf. In either case the tax might as well be doubled—and the Wheat Board given that much more revenue to distribute to the holders of participation certificates after expenses are paid.

If the bakers are right and the members wrong as to the effect of the 15-cent tax on the price of bread—and the bakers are probably right—the half cent supposedly saved to the consumer by retaining the tax at 15 cents would not work out in practice. As we have no half-cent coins, the consumer who wanted to make the saving would have to buy two loaves of bread when he wanted only one. The nuisance plus the popular objection to eating dry bread would off-set the saving from the consumer's point of view; while the farmer would get only half the benefit he would get from a 30-cent tax.

The Lancastria

The Lancastria

The sinking of the Lancastria adds another to the imperishable traditions of British seamen and soldiers, in which tragedy was fillumined by heroism. Three thousand men died there, but they died as gentlemen unafraid, fighting their ship until the waters swept them from the submerging decks. Such are the "decadent" people Herr Hilder says he is going to beat into submission and make slaves in his "new order" of barbarism?

The super-men whom the Fuehrer plans to put in charge of his reconstructed world were also represented there, and demonstrated again the methods and the principles by which he intends mankind to be ruled. This they did by machine-gunning men in the water, and dropping incendiary bombs to set the floating oil ablaze and scald them to death. If peoples not yet subjected to Nazi rule needed any incentive to fight to the death rather than accept that fate, this fresh illustration of the innate brutality of the doctrine and system surely supplies the stimulus.

The Lancastria, of course, was sunk more than a month ago, though the story of the sinking has just been released. The loss of life is not therefore to be added to that already reported. This was included in the estimates given out as to the casualties suffered in extricating the British troops from France.

The War In The Air

The War In The Air

Until recently, reports of raids on England in nearly every instance in-cluded a statement that the raiders "were flying very high." For self-evident rea-sons. It is one thing to swoop down and machine-gun farmers in the Channel Islands or refugees tramping along the roads in France, but something else to dive into a barrage of anti-aircraft shells or a hor-nets' nest of Spitfires.

While the raiders continued "flying very high" their visits were more worrisome than militarily effective. When one is dropping bombs from a height of a couple of miles there is a lot of room to miss what he aims at: one competent authority says he has only one and a half chances in a hundred. At night, or in murky weather, any damage he may do from such a height is accidental.

Apparently it occurred to the high from such a height is accidental.

Apparently it occurred to the high command that this safety-first type of attack was not accomplishing anything but a waste of bombs, and the bombers were told to do something more than just unload somewhere in the clouds over Britain and streak for home. They have been dive-bombing in recent raids, and machineguning village streets and cow pastures.

gunning village streets and cow pastures. But there are air raids and air raids. While the Nazi airmen have been shooting civilians, wrecking houses, and doing more or less damage to live stock British airmen have been paying as many visits to Germany and occupied territory, firing oil tanks, blowing up warehouses and munitions plants, destroying docks, railway junctions, air fields, hangars and grounded planes. And the daily record shows that fewer British planes fail to return from Germany than the German planes which do not get back from Britain.

Outnumbered as the Allied forces have do not get back from Britain.

Outnumbered as the Allied forces have been and still are, the war in the air has been and is going satisfactorily. So satisfactorily that the end of every passing week finds the enemy somewhat less favorably situated to launch the expected air-blitzkrieg on the British Isles.

The vice-president of the Saskatche-wan C.C.F. has resigned because when he joined the party he "thought socialism and pacifism were synonymous". He must have been painfully disillusioned by what National Socialism is doing in Europe.

The torpedoing of the Meknes may have been a "bloomer," but it looks much more like a deliberate act. The ship was ablaze with lights, the French flag was flying, and the vessel stopped promptly when ordered to. Whatever may have been the purpose, perhaps to show contempt for the Petain government, the U-boat commander almost certainly knew what he was doing and had instructions what he was doing and had instructions

Loyalty: New Style

The German commander in the Netherlands is upset because the Dutch Army and people have not shown the proper "leyalty" toward the German occupation. He complains that Dutch soldiers do not click heels with the proper spirit when German officers go by. He finds that the Dutch people do not understand "German measures to give safety and peace to the Netherlands," and he threatens them with death for "treason." But is it any wonder that the Dutch do not understand? The dictionary defines "loyal" as 'faithful and true to the lawful government; enthusiastically or reverently attached." In this sense the mass of the Dutch people have been magnificently loyal to their country and its free institutions, for four hundred years.—New York Times.

Hitler And The Orient

Hitler And The Orient

The rest of the world stands shocked and bewildered by the savagery with which the iron will of German impericilism is being imposed on the victoms of this craze for conquest. And if this is an example of what can happen in the western countries which have had to accept the Nazi rule of brute force, what would be the character of the rule which Herr Hitler and his minions would use over the peoples of the Orient if his world domination plans are allowed to bear fruition? The picture is too ghastly even to contemplate, for Herr Hitler's contempt for all things Oriental is too well known to the peoples of the East. There is no knowing to what extent Nazi excesses will go should it be the unhappy lot of the East to fall under the domination of Herr Hitler's will. He sims at bringing the greatest form of degradation on the inhabitants of his ruthless attacks with the idea of completely breaking their spirit.—Hong Kong the baseball hall of fame here Friday night when he set do we have second place Wetaskiwin Mustangs without a hit as the Stampeders walloped Mustangs by 8-1. Only a run seed in the sixth inning married the perfection of doing to be formance. The chunky right-hander was a self-sure set the game at every point and the large crowd enserted him as he struck out the last two men to write finis to a perfect game. He struck out eight in all game. He struck out eight in an The Stampeders broke out in two scoring rashes in the second and minth as they entrenched themselves more firmly in first place. Elchuk, on the hill for the Mustanga-was touched for bingles, every Stampeder getting at least one. Two lightning double-plays by Ponoka were the fielding highlights.
